Build a foundation to support students of trauma and make the classroom a safe place

Support students who have experienced acute or chronic stress by coupling knowledge of neurobiology with strategies that help foster safety, build partnerships and relationships while creating new experiences that increase academic and social emotional success.

Attendees will gain strategies, interventions and accommodations that:

- Retrain the brain
- Foster safety
- Build a partnership
- Create new experiences
- Increase academic, social and emotional learning
- Promote healing in the classroom
- Support resiliency, build relationships, and increase risk-taking

Increase knowledge of:

- How trauma impacts learning
- Recognition of symptoms of trauma
- Ways to promote healing
